

THE WEEKLY BANNER.

J. G. BARKIN, Proprietor.
O. H. P. GARRETT, Editor.

Thursday, July 3, 1890.

Lost-A crown. My kingdom for its recovery. G. Warwick Clark, Waco.—Fort Worth Gazette.

BRENNHAM will be prepared to sympathize with some of the bigger towns of the state when the census returns come in.

The annual cholera scare over in the old country has broken out, like the annual yellow fever scare on this side of the water.

THE BANNER challenges anybody to point out a better paper than its weekly edition, the last issue of which contains twenty-two columns of solid reading matter.

SARA BERNHARDT admits that she is platonically in love with Henry M. Stanley, and says that at his bidding she would follow him into the heart of Africa.

THE New York Commercial Advertiser of June 21 has a dispatch from Washington in which a glowing tribute is paid to the Texas delegation in the national house of representatives.

The democrats at Lancaster, Ky., find it difficult to get a man to run for school commissioner. There are two young ladies, an independent and a republican, in the race, and the men are too gallant to run against them.

The announcement is made that Sullivan and Jackson will have their raw-bones-and-bloody-nose contest on Virginia soil. It remains to be seen whether the "Old Dominion" will suffer such a stigma to be placed on her.

The great majority of American newspapers are disgusting toadies and man-worshippers. Ever since Stanley emerged from Africa he has been the constant theme of the press, and since it has been learned that he was soon to be married the object of his affections and the most trivial and commonplace incidents of her life have to be constantly paraded.

The Clarkites are now consoling themselves with the reflection that they won't get goose-egged at any rate. Oraz county has instructed for Judge Cook. The wretch who would deprive them of this poor consolation ought to be tarred and feathered.

PRESUMABLY in imitation of the New York Herald and other enterprising papers, the Dallas Times-Herald has sent an exploring expedition down the Trinity river. An exchange says that the last heard from it, it was slowly wending its way gulward through snags and alligators.

SOME of the Texas teachers who have taken a big dish in favor of the Blair educational bill in the state teachers' conventions and who are now before the democratic party as candidates for the position of superintendent of public instruction, no doubt wish now that they had never heard of the New Hampshire crank and his bill.

AFTER reading an editorial in the New York Tribune in defense of States' rights, the editor of the Courier-Journal observes: "Had Jefferson Davis and Robert Toombs lived to see the New York Tribune come out in favor of state rights they would have been truly happy. Who would have suspected that 'treason' would at last triumph!"

CLARK, Barry et al., who have sent out instructions to their few henchmen to try to stir up strife, inaugurate splits, secure bolts and send contesting delegations to the county and state conventions, must be made to occupy a seat on the stool of repentance for a while as a precedent condition to their remaining in the democratic fold.

THE Cleburne Chronicle reproduces the following from the Marlin Ball under the caption of "a doubtful compliment": "The Cleburne Chronicle nominates Barnett Gibbs for temporary chairman of the state convention. We place Scurlock in nomination for temporary secretary. Gibbs and the Chronicle are 'a whole team' and a big yellow dog under the wagon' in the Hogg cause."

Who knows but what James W. Throckmorton will yet be the nominee of the San Antonio convention? Stranger things have happened. His nomination would bring peace to the warring elements.—Marlin Ball.

Gov. Throckmorton would not lend himself to be a tool in any such a cowardly, underhanded game. He withdrew from the race in good faith after making a sufficient canvass of the state to see that the people wanted Hogg for governor. Not being willing to carry on an unequal fight openly with the odds against him, he is not the kind of a man to be made a tool of by having the report given out that he was out of the race and then lying in wait to be sprung before the convention with the hope of locking it or taking it by storm.

The newly-elected mayor of Shreveport, La., has created consternation among the colored population of that city by having a number of idlers arrested under the vagrancy act and having them fined and put in the chain-gang in lieu of paying their fines. The result is that there are no more idlers there. They have all either found work or are diligently engaged in seeking employment. The BANNER has worked hard to secure the enforcement of the vagrant law in Brenham, but so far its efforts have been in vain. There are blacks and whites both here who should be made to go to work.

POST-DISPATCH: President Harrison has taken pains to let the newspaper men know that he differs with Mr. Blaine on the McKinley bill, and that in sending Mr. Blaine's reciprocity argument to congress he didn't endorse it. The efforts of the administration to thwart and dwarf its biggest member have been from the beginning cautious, not to say timid, but rather ill-concealed and very assiduous. The vigor with which the subsidized organs are now attacking Blaine's policy shows that Mr. Harrison would like to find a safe way of getting a smaller secretary of state.

It is intimated that congress will not adjourn much before September, and that the final disposition of the tariff alone will fill up the time.

Pio Pico, known as the last Mexican Governor of California, is living in great poverty in that State. He is ninety years old.
